future For GED

take charge of your future.

Path:

Do you know someone that is off track and out of school, whose future looks bleak – a GED is a way to get back on the right path. Forge ahead and brighten someone's future.

Higher Education:

The GED is a nationally recognized credential. Most educators and employers understand the knowledge, skill and ability required for this achievement., The GED credential opens the door to post secondary education, on- the-job training and apprenticeships. Forging ahead is easier with this credential.

Career/Income:

Earning a GED credential is a pathway to a career and increased earning potential. According to Montana Department of Labor Research and Analysis there is a $5,500 annual earning differential between someone with a secondary credential (diploma or GED) and a high school dropout.

This means a huge difference in life time earnings and tax revenue for the state. A better career and higher income are future forged.

Confidence:

Earning a GED increases confidence and self esteem. Many completers feel a sense of accomplishment, knowing that they completed and passeda rigorous exam to earn the GED. Today only 7 out of 10 graduating seniors would earn a passing score if they were to take the GED.

GED completers join a cadre of accomplished citizens: Mike Mansfield (Senator), Bill Cosby (comedian/actor), George Foreman (boxer) , Peter Jennings (news anchorman) , Dr. F. Story Musgrave (astronaut) , Mary Lou Retton (Olympic gymnast) and Alicia Silverstone (actress), to name a few are successful GED completers. Encourage the ones youknow to forge ahead so they can join the successful GED team.

Succeed:

Earning a GED is the first step to higher education, career, income, and personal success.
